Standard Oil Tanker Sunk Off New Jersey Coast

U. S. SENDS TROOPS TO TWO DUTCH ISLANDS

West Indies Oil To Be Protected Against Invaders

Aruba and Curacao, Off Coast of Venezuela, Occupied by Americans

Refining Centers Will Be Guarded for Duration of the War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—To thwart any axis grab for the oil wealth of the Dutch West Indies, the United States announced tonight that it had sent troops to the Dutch Islands of Aruba and Cura-cao off the coast of Venezuela.

This follows up the government's action last November in sending troops to Dutch Guiana, on the north coast of South America, to guard the mines producing bauxite, from which aluminum is manufactured.

Indies Newly Menaced
Tonight's step was taken at a time when the Dutch East Indies, on the other side of the world, are newly menaced by the imminent fall of Singapore, and it was apparent that the United States and the Netherlands wanted to be in a position to repulse any synchroniz-ing stab by Germany at Dutch resources in the Atlantic.

The size of the forces sent to Curacao and Aruba was not disclosed. A formal announcement by the state department said the move was made at the request of The Netherlands government and that the troops would be withdrawn at the end of the war.

It was understood, the statement added, "that the Venezuelan and Netherlands governments have reached an agreement whereby the former will cooperate in this defense measure in a manner similar to that entered upon between the governments of Brazil and The Netherlands in the case of Surinam (Dutch Guiana)."

Both Refining Centers Curacao proper and Aruba, which belongs to the Curacao group of six islands, are both highly important as oil refining centers.

The Royal Dutch Shell has large refineries on Curacao and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has important facilities on Aruba.
These plants refine oil from Venezuela.

The area of Curacao is 210 square miles and that of Aruba seventy square miles. Curacao harbor has long been an important shipping center. A duty-free port, it was visited in 1939 by 7,000 ships, including cruise vessels whose passengers bought European cosmetics and other articles there.

The text of the state department announcement follows:
The United States government, at the request of The Netherlands government, has sent a contingent of the United States army to Curacao and Aruba to assist the Dutch armed forces in the defense of these islands which are vital to the war effort of the United Nations and the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

Serve only for Duration
The United States forces will operate under the general supervision of the governor of Cura-cao and will be withdrawn upon the termination of the emergency.

Two Japanese Cruisers Sunk Off Amboina Isle

Submarine and a Destroyer Also Destroyed,
Dutch Declare

BATAVIA, Thursday, Feb. 12 (AP)—
The sinking of two Japanese cruisers, one destroyer and a submarine off the Dutch naval base at Amboina island recently was announced by the naval commander here today.

Altogether there were three cruisers sunk along with the other vessels in the first weeks of fighting around Amboina island, but the sinking of one of them had been announced previously.

The commander's report today was based on an accumulation of sinking evidence regarding hits and sinks which he considered conclusive.

The previous report on the fighting off Amboina was made in a communiqué Feb. 7 which listed one Japanese cruiser as sunk and added conservatively that another cruiser and a submarine had been hit.

The naval commander said his new announcement was based on these fresh reports:
Cruiser Hits Mine
On Feb. 2 the first Japanese cruiser to enter the mine field laid by the Netherlands navy at the entrance of Ambon Bay, hit a mine and sank within a few minutes.

On Feb. 3, in a mine field laid before another Bay of Amboina island, a terrific explosion occurred under water, and later evidence indicated that it was an enemy submarine which was attempting to enter the bay stealthily.

Nothing has been seen or heard of the Japanese undersea boat since, and its complete destruction is considered an established fact now.

Report Cruiser Sunk
On Feb. 5 reliable eyewitnesses watching a Japanese cruiser hugging the Amboina shoreline saw it suddenly enveloped in smoke and fire.

Steed Torpedoed; Three Survivors Arrive in Port

Thirty-five Others in Crew Missing in Open Life-boats

Eight or Nine Germans Seen on Conning Tower of Submarine

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Standard oil tanker W. L. Steed was torpedoed to the bottom of the Atlantic in broad daylight off New Jersey Feb. 2, the navy reported today with the landing of three survivors from a crew of thirty-eight.

Three lifeboats containing an undisclosed number of men still are missing.

An Axis submarine hit the ship with one torpedo at 12:45 p. m. and the crew left the vessel in four lifeboats, able-bodied seaman Louis
Hartz, 38, of Philadelphia, said.

Sub Shells Tanker
"The sub then fired seventeen shells into the sinking ship," he asserted. "It surfaced about 200 yards from the lifeboats and looked them over carefully. We saw eight or nine Germans on the conning tower."

Hartz declared the submarine headed for the southwest still on the surface.

Besides Hartz the survivors landed here were Ralph Mazzucco, 23, able-bodied seaman, and Joaquim
R. Vrea, 39, boatswain, both of New York City.

They said they were rescued after two days in a lifeboat in subzero weather, by an unidentified Allied vessel, which took them to another Allied port before bringing them to New York.

Ship Told Now 24
The 6,182-ton tanker was built at Quincy, Mass., in 1918. She was 146 feet long and her home port was Wilmington, Del. She was considered almost a sister ship of the tanker
Allen Jackson, which was sunk Jan.
18.

The sinking announced today brought the total number of ships lost off the Atlantic coast to twenty-four since Jan. 12. This number includes fourteen off the United States coast. Another, the Malay, was damaged but reached port.

Canadian Youths Revolt against Conscription Law

Four Policemen Injured in Riotous Demonstration
in Montreal

MONTREAL, Feb. 11 (AP)—Bands of youths were admonished to vote
"no" to conscription for overseas service and urged to start a "peace campaign" at a rally here tonight and then they fanned out over the city in demonstrations that resulted in the injury of at least four policemen.

They engaged in melees with the police who tried to break up the demonstrations as the youngsters marched through the city bearing placards saying "no" and shouting in French: "Down, down, down conscription."

Police Captain H. Guimont suffered a severe head cut and he said he found a bullet hole in his hat after the original scuffle which occurred when the demonstrators were intercepted in midtown by motorcycle police who rode among the marchers, trying to break them up.

Guimont estimated there were about 300 marchers in this group but that thousands of curious persons soon gathered to make a huge crowd.

Some of the youths returned down a side street hurling chunks of ice at the police.

The Royal Canadian Mounted was called out to help the municipal police and police guards were sent to the scene.

Alf Landon Calls Upon FDR To End War Inefficiency

Charges New Dealers Treat War as "Political Alphabet"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Alf
M. Landon asserted tonight that the United States might well take a leaf from England's book and "change leaders, in the field or at home, whenever bungling management" of the war endangers military success.

Landon did not say whether he had any particular leader in mind, but he made plain that he considers there is "waste, inefficiency and confusion" in the government, and that New Dealers have been treating the war as "just another political alphabet." He called on President Roosevelt to make an end of such practices.

The American people, he asserted in an address prepared for broadcast over the blue network at a Lincoln day dinner here, are ready for united action, "but the sound of their leader's trumpet has been obscured."

Sees Lack of Frankness
"The babel of conflicting agencies in the nation's capital is creating confusion throughout the nation," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee continued. "Because of a lack of frankness we are not sufficiently aware of what is required of us. We are not efficiently girding ourselves for battle."

Likewise, the former Kansas gov-

American Reporter Flees Singapore After Writing Last Dispatch under Fire of Invading Japanese Forces

C. Yates McDaniel Pounds Out Story of Japanese
Advance Just Before British Officer Orders Him

(Editor's note: This is the last dispatch from the last American newspaper correspondent to leave the battle gloom of Singapore. It is from C. Yates McDaniel, mild-mannered China-born war correspondent of the Associated Press. It is reproduced here precisely as it was received—McDaniel will SINGAPORE, 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, (11:30 p. m.

E. W. T., Tuesday) (P)—The sky over Singapore is black with the smoke of a dozen huge fires this morning as I write my last message from this once beautiful, prosperous and peaceful city.

The roar and crash of cannonade and the bursting bombs which are shaking my typewriter and my hands, which are wet with nervous perspiration, tell me without the need of an official communiqué that the war which started nine weeks ago, 400 miles away, is today in the outskirts of this shaken bastion of empire.

I am sure there is a bright tropic sun shining somewhere overhead, but in my many-windowed room it is too dark to work without electric lights.

British Ignore Demand To Surrender Singapore

SINGAPORE, Feb. 11 (P)—British authorities ignored a Japanese demand for unconditional surrender tonight as Singapore's troops reeled back on this city under a hurricane fire by Japanese tanks, bombers, fighters and bayonet-wielding infantrymen.

A Japanese plane dropped the surrender note at 7:30 a. m., addressed to the British commander.
Thus far it has not been answered and bitter hand-to-hand fighting by the outnumbered British Imperial continues on the western approaches to Singapore city.

Tonight's communiqué said:
"The enemy drive from the west has been directed on Singapore city and has been pressed with vigor during the night."
"In addition there has been some infiltration today."
The enemy's advance has been assisted by tanks and considerable bomber and fighter support and our troops covering the west sector have been forced further back.

"This morning a Japanese note was dropped by air and addressed to the high commander (which) asked for the unconditional surrender of the entire forces in Malaya."
"No reply has been made to this note."
"In the western and northwestern sector bitter fighting continues. In the east of the island enemy activity has been slight."

British Counter-Attack In Tragic Move To Hold Great Pacific Fortress

Japanese Occupy Part of City and Are Rapidly Reducing Mighty Base to a Smoking Hulk; Defenders Fighting only for Time and with No
Hope of Success against Powerful Invaders

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press War Editor

SINGAPORE—A smoking hulk of a mighty base, a broken symbol of empire and the scene of a British defeat of terrible consequences—was as good as gone last (Wednesday) night and the lengthening enemy shadows were falling closer to Java, the last major allied position in the South Pacific above Australia.

On Singapore Island the tragic drama was fast running out. Short of air power, short of men, short of equipment, bankrupt of hope, the British Imperial line counter-attacked with pathetic gallantry that was serving only one limited purpose: to buy brief time against the fall of what had been the very seat and home of British power in the Pacific.

OLD SINGAPORE DOOMED

The Japanese claimed to have entered "the city area of Singapore"—the town itself—by 8 a. m. yesterday (Wednesday) Malayan time. But how near the enemy's brown columns stood now to this or that local objective was of no consequence any longer; old Singapore was in her last convulsion and for her men there was capture or death but no retreat.

The British command announced that the Japanese had dropped from the air a note demanding unconditional surrender; to this, it was stated, "no reply has been made."
This same communiqué told of an uninterrupted enemy advance and continued bitter fighting.

And, while the successful campaign for Singapore was approaching that end which for days had appeared all but inevitable, the Japanese high command was casting bolder invading line south toward Soerabaja, the great Dutch-Allied East Indies naval base on Java.

The enemy's troops, already front-ally attacking Macassar and its environments in western Celebes, struck as well on the eastern side of the lower peninsula at the town of Balangnipa, and appeared still to be advancing also down the western Borneo coast upon Bandjermasin.

Defense of Singapore Appears Hopeless

By DREW MIDDLETON
LONDON, Feb. 11 (P)—Black with the smoke of battle and broken by incessant salvos of bombs, Singapore was fighting its last tonight in the outlying sections of the proud island city itself.

The complete defeat of the bleeding Imperial garrison and the fall of the 123-year-old base seemed to be a matter of days, at most, although the men of Singapore, all but overwhelmed by the Japanese hordes which swarmed over the island in ever-growing strength, fought back valiantly today, even as times on the counter-attack.

Informed quarters acknowledged mere time-gaining diversions to children who were being taken away which darted in and out of the harbor under a terrifying rain of Japanese bombs.

hours came vividly from the bombrattled typewriter of C. Yates Mc-

Russians Driving Germans Back In Effort To Seize White Russia

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Feb. 11 (P)—With a battery of "on into White Russia."
The Red army smashed doggedly on west tonight, painstakingly overun-ning more smoldering towns where the swastika had flown along the fortified line which the Nazis tried at heavy cost to save.

White Russia, where the German army first pushed inside the old Russian boundary last summer, lies thirty miles beyond Smolensk and some sixty miles beyond the last reported Soviet forward positions in the Torpet-Kholm sector. Its complete recapture would set the Germans back into Sovietized eastern Poland where the first blows of the German-Russian war were struck.

Nazis Counter Attack

the Germans were persisting in counter-attacks from both flanks of the long battlefield in a desperate attempt to beat down the Soviet offensive.

The Russians, however, said they

MacArthur Reports Destruction Of 6 Japanese Planes in Battle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (P)— Awaiting a renewed offensive by the heavily reinforced Japanese, General Douglas MacArthur today reported to the war department the details of a "spectacular" air battle in the Philippines in which a force of six enemy planes was completely destroyed.

One American pursuit ship was missing as a result of the action, which was first reported yesterday.

Several American fighter planes, which had been escorting a slow-moving photographic plane, were about to land when they spotted the enemy group. Instead of taking to the ground they pounced upon the Japs.

"A series of thrilling dog fights ensued," the war department said.
"Four enemy fighters were immediately shot down. A fifth was crippled and veered off to the north, landing on an air field near Plar where it was destroyed by our artillery. The sixth plane fell out of control and was ultimately found where it crashed in the mountains."

Recap, Retread Tire Rationing To Start Feb. 19

Purchases for Pleasure Cars Expected To Be Prohibited

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Picturing the rubber supply situation as "much blacker" than a month ago, the government today ordered the rubber content of tires and other products curtailed sharply and announced that retreaded and recap tires would be rationed.

Officials laid the increasing gravity of the rubber situation to additional military requirements and the prospect of "very substantial increases" in these needs.

First Action of Kind

In the first action of its kind, the War Production Board issued detailed specifications for ten major classes of rubber goods to save some 25,000 tons of crude rubber annually.

The order provided for fifteen per cent less rubber in automobile tires, only seven and one-half ounces in bicycle tires instead of seventeen, and only half a pound of rubber in boots and overshoes. Administrator Leon Henderson declared that so little crude rubber was available for retreading that probably no motorists except those now eligible to buy new tires would be able to buy retreads or have their present tires recapped under the rationing to start Feb. 19. However, in case additional supplies of retreading material become available, a secondary list of eligibles has been established.

Tires for only a Few

This "if and when" list includes traveling salesmen, taxicab drivers, certain essential executives and workers, employees of federal, state and local governments, farmers, and owners of passenger cars used by newspapers for wholesale deliveries.

Henderson said flatly that no retreading material would be available this month for passenger cars and that the supply for March was doubtful. He added that "events will dictate the future production of this material." None of the eligibles on the if and when list will be able to obtain retread ration certificates this month and next.

Japanese Cross Salween in Move To Take Rangoon

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 11 (AP)—Strong Japanese forces have crossed the Salween river above Martaban after apparently seizing that strategic city protecting the approaches to Rangoon, the British high command acknowledged tonight.

The Japanese also were attempting to cross farther upstream at the east bank city of Paan, and a communique said that "the situation, although critical, is believed to be in hand with our positions still intact."

Still farther north near the juncture of the Thailand-Burma-India Chinese frontiers, the communique said that Chinese troops going into action for the first time repulsed another invasion thrust. Thirty casualties were inflicted and some ammunition abandoned by the invaders, identified as Thailanders, at that point, it was said.

Lifting the curtain on the Martaban conflict at the mouth of the jungle-fringed Salween, the British said heavy casualties were inflicted on the Japanese in the hills east and west of the city, "but Martaban itself now is believed to be in enemy hands."

The communique locating the crossings clearly revealed the serious plight of the British defenders of the lower railway which curves north and westward around the gulf of Martaban toward Rangoon, this vital Burma road port. By air-line this capital is only eighty miles from Martaban; by railway it is about 140 miles.

Seizure of Martaban imperiled all the British troops operating between there and the first rail station to the north, Thabon, which has been heavily bombed by the Japanese. The crossing above that city put the Japanese in position to begin a circuitous overland march on Rangoon which receives precious American Lend-Lease equipment for shipment to China.

It is understood furthermore that the Venezuelan and the Netherlands governments have reached an agreement whereby the former will cooperate in this defense measure in a manner similar to that agreed upon between the governments of Brazil and the Netherlands in the case of Surinam.

The government of Venezuela has indicated its wholehearted approval of these emergency measures.

The governments of the American republics are being notified of the foregoing arrangements.

Earle Says Germans Intend To Use Gas In Spring Drive

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11 (AP)—George H. Earle, former United States minister to Bulgaria, said today he had "documentary evidence" that the Germans are manufacturing poison gas and may use it on the Russian front this spring.

Earle, in a speech at a luncheon club, said:

"I have documentary evidence that they are manufacturing the gas in all types of containers in both Vienna and Leipzig and that they intend to use it."

"I have heard that the only reason they have not used gas in the Russian campaign is because the prevailing winds have been from the east. These winds generally shift to the opposite direction in the spring, and the Germans may use gas then."

"There is one great blessing that would come from the use of poison gas by the Germans—we will know then that they are at the point of despair, that their backs are to the wall and we practically have them licked."

U. S. Equipment Used by Japs in Battle of Bataan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Life-saving equipment given to Japan by the United States after the earthquake and fire which devastated Japan in 1923 has been found in use in the landing barges in which Japanese attacked the west coast of Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

Reporting this today, the war department said barges captured by the defending troops contained equipment marked "United States Army Transport, Merritt."

They were part of the relief supplies which, ironically, were loaded on the transport Merritt in Manila for shipment to Japan under the direction of Douglas MacArthur, then commander of the Philippine Scouts Brigade.

Alf Landon Calls

ernor said, the president has "not made clear the staggering sacrifices ahead of us."

"We have never experienced anything like it in our history," he declared. "Resolute and courageous as the American people are, their mettle will be severely tried in the years ahead. Whether it be the man who fights or the man who works, his dreams will be broken. Life will not be again, in our time, as we have heretofore known it. But we have a job to do now, and we are going to do it."

Landon said that the American people specifically want these results: Production adequate to the needs of the armed forces; certainty that defense funds are not wasted in non-defense expenditures; no mismanagement, and prevention of all war profiteering.

"The people are united in agreement," he asserted, "that the crying need at this time is co-ordination and organization of our entire war effort."

Landon, who called on President Roosevelt at the White House earlier in the day to "pay his respects," described the role of the Republican party as more than that of a critic, an observer, "or a fellow-traveler." "By leadership of public opinion," he said, "it has very definitely the duty of pulling and pushing and showing the national administration along the road to victorious war production, while preserving fundamentals of our form of government and our way of life."

The test of the ability of a free people to survive, he continued, "is their freedom to point out the weak spots of their leaders, and their ability at the same time to co-operate with them."

The middlewestern leader expressed no doubt as to the outcome of the war, although he said "at best, it may be a long, long time before we achieve ultimate victory." To this end, he called upon every citizen, as his duty to the country, to give the president wholehearted support.

"Our pride is stirred and our enthusiasm inspired by the extent of the president's program," he declared. "We know that all the world is waiting to be shown."

"Those in the Axis powers who are attempting to laugh off our military production program are whistling through the graveyard in the dark."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Republican National committee, appeared with Landon at the dinner sponsored by Republican congressmen and members of the League of Republican Women.

"In this fight against the Axis for the preservation of freedom and our way of life Republicans will continue vigorously to support the president," Martin said. "I venture to say no opposition party has ever given more complete support than we have to President Roosevelt during this war period."

Five Army Fliers Killed in Crash Of Giant Plane

Sixth Man Is Missing Following Accident in State of Connecticut

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn., Feb. 11 (AP)—Army officials at Bradley Field announced tonight that five men had been killed and another was missing in the crash of a multi-engine plane, on a routine flight, between East Granby and Tariffville just west of here.

Bodies recovered in the wreckage were identified as:

Second Lieutenant Walter C. Boyle of La Crosse, Wis.

Staff Sergeant Michael Kaufman of Windsor Locks, Conn.

Sergeant Gordon G. Johnson of Renovo, Pa.

Sergeant John T. Howey of New York City.

Sergeant Thomas F. Quinn of Upper Derby, Pa.

A sixth occupant of the plane, whose name was withheld, was reported as missing.

Officials said, however, that an open parachute had been found in the vicinity of East Willington, Conn., but that there was no trace of an occupant.

The next of kin of the dead fliers have been notified.

Col. Clyde V. Finter, commanding officer of Bradley Field, planned to name a board of inquiry shortly.

Aviatrix in Pay Of Germany, FBI Testimony Shows

Laura Ingalls Said To Have Received $300 a Month for Services

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—The government rested its case against Laura Ingalls, noted aviatrix, today with testimony that she received $300 a month from the German embassy to campaign for American neutrality, and that an embassy official even tried to get money to her after the United States entered the war.

One such payment of $100 was intercepted by the FBI, a district court jury was told during the trial of Miss Ingalls on charges of serving Germany without registering with the state department.

Defense counsel tried unsuccessfully to have much of the testimony of the government's star witness, Miss Julia Kraus, alleged intermediary between the flier and the German embassy. Defense counsel objected that a great deal of her testimony was inadmissible because it related to conversations between embassy officials and Miss Kraus at times when the defendant was not present.

Laura Testifies Today

Although Federal Judge James W. Morris ruled this objection out, he decided that Miss Ingalls will be permitted to discuss her motives when she takes the stand tomorrow. She has insisted her intentions were patriotic in that she was conducting counter-espionage work.

Miss Kraus told of transmitting $150 from Ulrich von Gienanth, second secretary of the German embassy, to Miss Ingalls last November. The witness also related that the German embassy offered Miss Ingalls $250 monthly "but she wanted $300." Von Gienanth, she added, made up the difference.

Miss Ingalls came to Washington Dec. 11, 1941, the day Germany and Italy declared war on the United States, and expressed a wish to see von Gienanth to obtain the names of persons "who can continue our work in this country," Miss Kraus declared.

Letters Introduced

The government introduced letters today from Miss Ingalls to Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires, in which the flier purportedly praised Adolf Hitler and Nazi military triumphs—each letter concluding with a "Heil Hitler."

The letters, it was alleged, were written by Miss Ingalls last spring. After the government introduced them in evidence, federal agents told of shadowing Miss Ingalls to meetings with Thomsen and other German diplomats.

Miss Kraus testified that the aviatrix received $150 from the embassy last November to promote peace sentiment in this country. Miss Kraus, a friend of the flier, told of transmitting the money to her at Chicago and Colorado Springs, Colo., at the request of Ulrich von Gienanth, former second secretary of the embassy.

Miss Kraus added that von Gienanth told her to write Miss Ingalls a "command" to refrain from writing lengthy letters about America First activities.

Letter Scores Churchill

In one letter to Thomsen dated April 27, Miss Ingalls referred to a speech by Prime Minister Churchill, urged Thomsen to answer it, and termed the British prime minister "the greatest single menace to the peace of this country."

Another letter May 24 referred to the German conquest of Crete and the sinking of the British battleship Hood as "triumphs" which reflected "the glory of the reborn navy." It concluded with a poetic tribute to "The Watch on the Rhine."

Three Frenchmen Shot in Paris After New Outburst of Bombing

By MEL MOST

VICHY, FRANCE, Feb. 11 (AP)—Three Frenchmen were shot in Paris today on the order of the German commander after a new outburst of bombing directed at conqueror and collaborator alike.

The victims were listed as Robert Alcoumbre and Roger Yabbes, both of St. Maur accused of "activity favoring the enemy as the result of De Gaulle agitation," and Andre Durand, of Le Mans, condemned for espionage.

Four different explosions were reported: one in the German officers' mess in the university city at the south edge of Paris, where a bomb blew up in the very room where officers were eating; the other three blasts at various headquarters of the "social revolutionary movement," an

our soldiers, who are fighting back in a hell over which there is no protecting screen of fighter planes. But the Japanese are not completely alone in the skies this morning! I just saw two "wildbeasts"—obsolete biplanes with an operating speed of about 100 miles an hour—fly low over the Japanese positions and unload their bomb burdens with a resounding crash.

It makes me rather ashamed of myself, sitting here with my heart beating faster and faster than their old motors, when I think what chance those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines. If ever brave men earned undying glory, those RAF pilots have on this tragic morning.

Many Other Brave Men

There are many other brave men in Singapore today. Not far away are anti-aircraft batteries in open spaces—they must be, to have a clear field of fire.

Pardon the break in continuity, but a packet of bombs just landed so close that I had to duck behind a wall which I hoped would—and it did—screen the blast.

But those gun crews keep on fighting, their guns peppering the smoke-limited ceiling every time the Japanese planes come near, and that is almost constantly.

What a clear has just sounded—what a joke! For from the window I can see three Japanese planes hedge-hopping, not a mile away.

Hear Tragic Conversation

A few minutes ago I heard one of the most tragic two-way telephone conversations. Eric Davis, director of the Malayan Broadcasting Corporation, urged the governor, Sir Shenton Thomas, to give permission to destroy an outlying broadcasting station. The governor demurred, saying the situation was not too bad, and refused to direct the station in question, instructing them to keep on the air but to stand by for urgent orders. We tuned in on the wave length of the station in question. In the middle of the broadcast in Malay, urging the people of Singapore to stand firm, the station went dead.

At my elbow while I write this last message is Capt. O. K. Pearson, ministry of information adviser on censorship, who is breakfasting on biscuits and brandy.

Told To Pack Up

Henry Steel of Richmond, Surrey (Eng.), army public relations officer who has seen us through a bad situation from the Thai border to Singapore, just told me I had ten minutes to pack up and leave.

When Henry says go, I go, so goodbye from Singapore.

F. Y. Tong of Canton, who has been landlaid for the British ministry of information and the Malayan subsidiary of the B.B.C., just showed me three famous Chinese paintings he is carrying with him to the vessel on which the ministry of information, the Malayan Broadcasting subsidiary, M.B.C., and this first-to-arrive and last-to-leave foreign correspondent are now embarking with less than fifty percent chance of getting clear of this close-beleaguered fortress.

Definitely last:— I am leaving now in a car which I swear I will put into forward gear and head straight into the strait of Malacca. I left one car for the Japanese in Nanking in 1937, but never again.

Don't expect to hear from me for many days, but please inform Mrs. McDaniel, hotel Preanger, Bandung, Java, that I have left this land of the living and dying.

perimeter of Dunkerque. They were attacks whose only object was to kill the enemy and save time.

The tragedy at Singapore was made sharp in McDaniel's last dispatch.

No Screen for Fighters

"Over the low rise where the battle is raging I can see relay after relay of Japanese planes circling then going into murderous dives on our soldiers, who are fighting back in a hell over there which there is no protecting screen of our own fighters," he wrote.

"But the Japanese are not completely alone in the skies this morning, for I just saw two 'wildbeasts'—obsolete biplanes with an operating speed of about 100 miles an hour—fly low over the Japanese positions and unload bomb burdens with a resounding crash. . . . It makes me ashamed of myself, sitting here with my heart beating faster than their old motors, when I think what chance those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines."

Helfrich Takes Harl's Place in Indies Command

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—An admiral of the Royal Netherlands navy succeeded to the command of American and other Allied sea forces defending the rich East Indies today as Japanese hordes battered the once-guardian fortress of Singapore.

The shakeup in command was occasioned, it was officially announced, by the heretofore unrelieved illness of Admiral Thomas C. Hart, 64-year-old American, who requested to be relieved of his weighty duties as chief of the combined naval forces in the Western Pacific.

Helfrich Elevated

To the place he had held since January 17 the United Nations leadership elevated his second-in-command, Vice Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich. This 55-year-old native of the Indies thus becomes supreme director of allied naval strategy on the eve of desperate days for the islands' defenders—days which may produce the bitterest naval fighting of the war to date.

Qualified observers here predicted that Helfrich, in protection of his homeland, would undoubtedly follow a strategy of "no retreats" although at the same time conserving his relatively small force of United States, Dutch and British warships for striking at the Japanese invaders only where the most effective blows could be delivered.

That the Dutch want to strike as hard as possible now was indicated in a dispatch from Batavia yesterday in which a naval spokesman was quoted as saying that a considerable part of Allied forces in the Western Pacific was busy with work not connected with fighting.

To this ironic observation, the spokesman added that heavy naval reinforcements were needed to wrest dominance of the southern seas from the Japanese.

of Bataan. This accounted for all of the enemy planes engaged in the combat. One of our planes is missing."

The photographic plane, which had been on a mission over Cavite province, was piloted by Captain Jesus Villamor of the Philippine air force, who recently was awarded the distinguished service cross with oak leaf cluster for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism. He had landed safely when the enemy planes were sighted.

On Bataan peninsula, meanwhile, the fighting was in a lull, with the American and Filipino troops there bracing themselves for a full scale attack obviously in the making.

The "movements of hostile reinforcements" indicated, the department said, the early resumption of an "attack in force" upon the position of the defending forces.

flame. Six heavy explosions shook the ship. It was learned later that the navy had laid a minefield exactly at this point, and the conclusion is that the cruiser hit one or more of these mines. The original official report indicated this vessel as damaged, but the naval commander today listed it as unquestionably among those sunk.

On Feb. 1 a giant coastal battery at Ambolna, consisting of fifteen-inch guns, shelled and hit a cruiser and a destroyer. Fuller reports indicate that they were both sunk.

able difficulties" with the natives in Malaya by favoring Europeans in the evacuation of the island of Penang.

Brown, declaring that "at no point are the Japanese being held by the allied forces," predicted the fall of Singapore city in from twenty-four to seventy-two hours, said Dutch Sumatra may be taken, that the fate of Java would be decided within a month, and that "Australia will be attacked in the very near future."

Brown arrived in Sydney by airplane from Batavia, capital of the Dutch East Indies.

Republicans Meet Tonight To Plan Coming Campaign

Lincoln Day Dinners Scheduled in Several Parts of State

(By The Associated Press) Politically-somnolent Republicans will attend scattered Lincoln day dinners in Maryland tonight (Thursday) with dinner table conversation expected to center around efforts to awaken the party for at least a token campaign next fall.

In Washington, Rep. Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.), national chairman, sounded the call with a statement yesterday that a two-party system was necessary for constructive criticism of the war effort. At the same time, he pledged "100 per cent co-operation to the president."

This line will be followed in Baltimore at the twelfth annual Lincoln Day banquet of the Alexander Hamilton Club of Maryland, Rep. Edgar Chenoweth (R-Colo.), the principal speaker, will discuss the war from the point of view of whether the nation is meeting the present crisis with the determination Lincoln met the threat of a divided nation.

Western Maryland Plans

Most of the other dinners are planned in Western Maryland, where the GOP has enjoyed most of its recent successes in recent years. Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan of the circuit court of appeals will be the speaker at an Allegheny county dinner in Frostburg.

Frederick Republicans have given up plans for any Lincoln Day celebration but the local party organization plans a banquet Feb. 21. Carroll county Republicans will hold an informal dinner tonight in Westminster where reservations have been made for sixty persons.

No dinner will be held in Annapolis and many other Democratic strongholds. Few are scheduled on the Eastern Shore.

That the Republican State Central committee for Howard county was without a member was disclosed today in an opinion to the governor (a Democrat) by

420 Persons Can Be Given Shelter In Post Office

Complete Setup in Case of Air Raid Is Devised by James C. Shriver

The first complete setup for an air raid shelter in Cumberland has been devised by James C. Shriver, postmaster. The shelter will be the post office building on Pershing street.

Plans include a police and fire force, Red Cross workers, a canteen, first aid station and maintenance of the building. Shelter is available for 420 persons in the main lobby and basement rooms of the huge structure, Shriver said.

One Entrance Will Be Closed

In the event of an air raid the main entrance next to the Strand theater will be closed and made secure against bomb splinters. Alfred L. Sidaway will be stationed on the outside of the entrance to direct persons seeking shelter to the west entrance near South Mechanic street. He will later be on duty as a fireman inside the building.

At the west door two men will be stationed. James W. Webster, who will admit persons, and Joseph A. Grabenstein, who will count them as they enter. William R. Thayer will direct persons to a safe position in the lobby on the first floor. Ninety persons can be accommodated there.

After the main lobby is filled Thayer will direct persons to the basement where William W. Nasse will direct them to the central part of the basement which can hold fifty persons. Eighty persons can also be accommodated in the storage room in the basement. An additional fifty persons can be sent to the room directly under the mail loading platform at the rear of the post office. Twenty-five persons will be sent to another room nearby and a final ninety persons will be ushered into the space used as the post office store.

Police and Fire Force Assigned

The men mentioned then will return to the upper floors to act as firemen. Charles B. Leonard, fire chief, directly responsible for protection of the roof of the building, will be assisted by Robert B. Sturtz, Charles P. Strong and Corp. Jack L. Miller will protect the third floor against fire. Glisson T. Porter and Karl L. Michel, U.S.N., will protect the second floor.

Lieut. William H. Geppert, U.S.N., will be chief of the police force with headquarters in the lobby. Chief Petty Officer George J. Carroll, U.S.N., will be assistant chief with headquarters on the third floor.

Henry M. Millhouse, manager of the Social Security office, will protect the second floor while Yeoman Edward B. Shuck will be stationed in the basement.

George E. Hess and Miss Bessie Baird will guard the vaults in the finance department. These persons will be responsible for good order during a blackout or an attack.

Richard J. Stakem, deputy collector of internal revenue, and Staff Sgt. Clarence Biehn will handle the canteen on the main floor and also act as policemen. John R. Uhl and Yeoman John J. McLean, U.S.N., will look after fire-fighting equipment. Victor E. Shaffer will also be on general duty as a fireman.

First Aid Station Planned

A complete and experienced personnel has been appointed for first aid duty under the direction of Delmar P. Thompson, who is now teaching many such classes, and Frank L. Storm will be his assistant. Mrs. W. Lee Witherspoon will have charge of nurses at the first aid station in Room 120, first floor, assisted by Mrs. Somerville Nicholson and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum. Mrs. Louise P. Coulehan and Mrs. Richard Lowndes will have charge of the Red Cross office on the third floor.

Help Man Ramparts Of Mercy, McAlpine Asks in Radio Plea

Red Cross War Relief Fund Described as 'Form of Insurance'

"Give what you can to help man the ramparts of mercy," John M. McAlpine, president of the Junior association of commerce, urged last night in a radio appeal on behalf of the $35,000 war relief campaign of the Allegheny county Red Cross chapter.

The $500,000 war chest the Red Cross is seeking to raise throughout the nation was described by McAlpine as "a form of insurance against the day when it will be needed."

Expressing the hope that the civilian population will be spared enemy attack, the speaker pointed out, however, that "hope is not enough." "We must be prepared," he said, "to cope with the disaster that will follow if enemy planes darken our skies."

In addition to providing aid and comfort for the men in the nation's armed forces, the Red Cross will use these funds to prepare for such eventualities, the junior association president declared, stressing the need for training of civilian volunteers in a host of activities.

Another in the series of Red Cross talks will be heard over Station WTBO at 5:50 o'clock this evening, when Clyde D. Lucas, secretary-treasurer of Celandese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, will be the speaker.

Annual Lincoln Day Dinner Has War-time Angle

Judge Sloan Expects To Devote Part of Address to Civil War

The annual Lincoln day dinner which is to be given tonight in Frostburg at the Gunter hotel under the auspices of the Allegheny County Republican State Central Committee takes on added significance in view of the fact this country is now at war.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan of circuit court will be the speaker. He will use the life of Abraham Lincoln as his topic and it will contain nothing political, he said last night. Judge Sloan will presumably devote part of his address on Lincoln's trying times during the Civil War, observers said.

The dinner, which gets under way at 6:30 p. m., begins with the invocation by the Rev. Walter D. Reese, pastor of the Welsh Baptist Memorial church, Frostburg, salute to the flag and singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Patriotic Songs to Feature

Group singing of patriotic songs led by Clement Lucas and accompanied on the Solovov piano by Joseph Williams will also be on the program. Lucas will also sing several selections.

Lewis M. Wilson, Cumberland attorney, will be toastmaster for the dinner. Mrs. Morgan C. Harris, this city, is chairman of the entertainment committee. Herbert Griffith and Thomas Elias, both of Frostburg, are in charge of general arrangements.

Reservations, some of which are still available, are in charge of Edgar M. Lewis, chief clerk of trial magistrates' court, this city. Turkey will be the piece de resistance at the dinner. Over 200 persons are expected to attend the event.

First Time in Frostburg

It was decided to hold the dinner in Frostburg because the event has never been held in the Mountain City and the committee wished to give the honor to that Republican stronghold of Allegheny county.

Gateways

by News-Staff Members

In common with members of other local churches, parishioners of St. Patrick's Catholic church observe special services for members of the army, navy, marines and nursing corps. A silver bowl stands next to the high altar and a card is placed therein by church members stating their intention of attending Mass during the week for a son or daughter or a relative in military service.

Printed on the back of the weekly church notice last week was a list of those for whom services were being dedicated. One name caught your eye at once. As far as could be learned he has no relatives in Cumberland and is himself not a member of the parish. But his name — Gen. Douglas MacArthur — leader of the heroic defenders of the Philippines, was inscribed along with several score other local persons.

History repeats itself!

The Boy Scouts of America is living again the stirring days of 1917 and 1918. The present conflict recalls the service rendered the nation when Scouting was only seven years old.

Now, on its thirty-second anniversary, the Boy Scouts of America again serves America at war. These services range from poster distribution to blackout first aid.

Early in 1914, before the United States became involved in actual war the Boy Scouts of America was asked to take the responsibility for the distribution of posters advertising the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Stamps. Boy Scouts put up 1,700,000.

Almost immediately the Office of Civilian Defense requested the aid of the Boy Scouts of America in helping to collect scrap aluminum for airplane construction. Boy Scouts all over the United States collected ten million pounds of aluminum—eighty per cent of all collected.

Then came the appeal to collect waste paper. Thousands of tons of waste paper have been gathered already by them and their quest for it continues.

As in the last World war the Boy Scouts are doing those things of which they are capable to help the home front in its fight for the democratic way of life. Scouting prepares boys for many "good turns" and America has learned through war and peace a Boy Scout is dependable.

Selective Service Headquarters Enlightens Men Who Will Register

Questions on All Phases Are Received from Men in 20-44 Age Group as Registration Dates Near

Hundreds of Allegheny county men as well as thousands of other Marylanders will join the Selective Service lists over the coming week when the 20-44 age group registers for the draft. Registration days in Maryland will be Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

It is a recognized fact that registration and subsequent classification and call to military duty will affect the future of many of these men and as a result thousands of questions regarding the Selective Service procedure have been raised.

Most common of these questions have been put before officers at Maryland's Selective Service headquarters in Baltimore. Here are some of the questions and the officers' answers:

Date Dead Lines Given

Q—Who must register in this month's registration?

A—All men who have not registered heretofore, and who have not reached the age of twenty on or before December 31, 1941, and who have not reached the age of forty-five on or before February 16, 1942. This registration likewise includes any man who erroneously registered on previous registration days, and who comes under the age limits of this registration.

Q—Where must I register?

A—At the registration place or places designated by the local board within the local board area in which you live. Registration in Allegheny county will be in school houses which have already been designated.

Q—When must I register?

A—Any time between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., on Saturday, February 14, and Sunday, February 15, or between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m., on Monday February 16.

Q—May I register as a conscientious objector?

A—No. Full opportunity will be given to express reasons for your deferment request after you receive your questionnaire.

Q—Will I get a physical examination when I register?

A—No.

15 Minutes To Register

Q—How long will it take to register?

A—Approximately fifteen minutes. If you do not wait until rush hours.

Q—May I have someone else register for me?

A—No.

Q—If I register in Cumberland and give a residence address here, can I later get it transferred to a local board in Pittsburgh, or some other city if I should move there?

A—No. The residence address given on the second line of the registration card forever determines the local board where your registration card shall remain. Upon request, a physical examination or classification may be accomplished through the medium of another local board. But original jurisdiction is always maintained by the board which has jurisdiction over the registration residence address.

Q—Will I get a registration certificate when I register?

A—Yes.

Must Carry Card With You

Q—Is it absolutely necessary that I always carry the card?

A—Yes, this card must be kept in your possession at all times.

Q—When will I be classified if I register on the sixteenth?

A—Your classification will be in order when your number is reached. Each registrant will be given a serial number. These serial numbers will be placed in a national lottery, and through the sequence of drawings an order number will be assigned to each man. This order number determines the sequence in which men will be sent their questionnaires and called to duty.

Q—Will everyone who registers get a questionnaire?

A—Yes.

Q—When will I get my questionnaire?

A—That depends on your order number. Those with the lowest order numbers get their questionnaires first. You will probably not get a questionnaire for a month or two at the earliest.

Not Everyone Is Examined

Q—Will everyone get a physical examination?

A—No, only those registrants who have no valid reason for deferment, and are put in Class 1 get physical examinations.

Colt Uninjured When Hit by Car, But Motorist Asks $98 Damages

An automobile reputedly came off second best in an encounter with a colt last week, and its owner came off second best in a legal encounter with the colt's owner last night.

The story, as unfolded before a six-man jury and Justice-of-the-Peace C. A. Jewell in Ridgeley last night was substantially as follows: One day last week, C. M. Malone, of near Fort Ashby, finished his farm chores, checked to see that his livestock was properly penned and knocked off about 5:30 p. m. About 9 p. m., he was told by a neighbor that his colt was out on the highway.

Malone and his two children got in the car and started out to look for the colt. They soon spotted him on the road, and Malone stopped the car preparatory to corralling it. However, he delayed getting out until a car passed.

This car, whose owner-driver, Oscar Neff, of Port Ashby, was plaintiff in last night's trial, was hitting a pretty fast clip, said Malone, and ended up by sideswiping the colt.

Neff entered suit for $75 for damage to his car, upping the amount last night to $98. He said the windshield was broken, the glass in both windows on the left side shattered, the left front door stove in and the door handle torn off.

Boy Scout Troop Of B. and O. Y Honors Fathers

Charter Is Presented Members Following Annual Banquet

Cumberland's oldest Boy Scout Troop held its annual Father and Son banquet last night along with the presentation of its charter and individual certificates to members of the troop. Thirty-five scouts and their fathers attended.

The troop, sponsored by the B. and O. Y M. C. A. has registered each year for the past eighteen years according to Raymond C. Lator, Scout executive. Lator spoke on the duty of every Scout as an American citizen.

Following the chicken dinner, H. Vernon Adams, neighborhood Boy Scout commissioner, presented the certificate to the Scout committee of Troop No. 2 and told of several former members of the troop who have succeeded in their careers and also of two former members who are now in the armed forces of the United States. John W. Rueschlein, with the navy in the Pacific war areas and David Mease, who is a radioman on an army bomber.

Courtney Kicewell secretary of the B. and O. Y in accepting the charter for the troop expressed confidence in the boys and remarked that the directors of the Y were proud of the entire membership and their excellent record.

A movie in colors, "The Scout Trail to Citizenship," was shown. The salute to the flag and Scout oath and benediction closed the ceremonies. The event was held in the B. and O. Y auditorium.

Red Cross Workers Will Report Today

Capt. Randolph Millholland and A. B. Gibson Will Speak

Capt. Randolph Millholland, of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, Fort George G. Meade, and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson will be the principal speakers at the first report meeting in the Red Cross war relief drive at noon today at Central YMCA, it was announced last night.

Campaign leaders and workers are eagerly looking forward to today's meeting, hoping the first reports on the progress of the drive in Cumberland will indicate that it will be "over the top" by tomorrow night, when a "victory dinner" is tentatively scheduled. If tomorrow night's report meeting ends with the goal still unattained, the drive will continue until Tuesday.

All workers are urged to attend the meeting today in order that the reports may be as complete as possible.

Local Man Injured When Struck by Car

Hospital Attaches Say John Washington's Condition Not Serious

John Washington, 70, negro, of 441 Pine street, was admitted to Memorial hospital last evening at 9 o'clock suffering a head laceration as a result of being struck by a car at the intersection of Greene and Smallwood streets.

Hospital attaches said the aged man was brought to the hospital by Albert M. Robinette, Route 5, Bowling Green, and Officer F. O. Daum of the local police.

Robinette told attaches that he was driving across the intersection of Smallwood and Greene streets and that, blinded by the lights of another car, he did not see the pedestrian who walked in front of the car.

Hospital attaches did not consider the injuries to be serious. Robinette reported to police headquarters and was released on his own recognizance pending the outcome of the inquiry.

Officer Fred O. Daum investigated the accident for city authorities.

A Constant Source Of Inspiration

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, the one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of whose birth the nation celebrates today, was a man who presented to the world a surface appearance of utmost simplicity and commonness. But beneath the plain surface lived a genius which made the name of Lincoln one of the outstanding of all recorded time, for he lived to weed many discordant elements into one great nation.

As the years roll by, more and more millions of words are added to the millions already written and spoken about this man who gave his life to his country and whose accomplishments all Americans enjoy. The more articles and books are written about Lincoln, the more vague grows the outlines of his legendary figure. But the more definite becomes the evidence of his price-less labor in behalf of a unified America and of his humanitarian ideal to help mankind rise from enslavement.

Lincoln is large enough to share with others. To free men everywhere he is the patron saint of liberty and of democracy. It is not idolatry to seek inspiration in these times in one whose life itself is a drama of crusade and sacrifice. And Americans have faith that the things he stood for will endure, forever indestructible, forever challenging the best in human nature.

In the presence of the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, on this anniversary of his birth, it is fitting to quote in the memory of the Great Emancipator this tribute from Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"Abraham Lincoln . . . who was at home and welcome with the humblest, and with a spirit and a practical vein in the times of terror that command the admiration of the wisest. His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong."

Probe of Normandie Fire Is Imperative

NAVY OFFICERS are quoted as stating that no evidence of sabotage has been apparent in the burning of the magnificent big French liner, the Normandie, at its pier on the Hudson river in New York city, as it was being reconducted as the Lafayette for navy service.

Such an opinion, however, must have been more or less superficial by reason of the fire conditions obtaining at the outset; and inasmuch as the sixty-million dollar vessel was not wholly destroyed, there should be complete investigation into the causes of this serious disaster, as undoubtedly there will be.

Either the big ship was fired by sabotage or through inexcusable carelessness. If the latter, that seems strange in view of the care that had all along been given to protection of the vessel before it was requisitioned by the navy, and it goes without saying that costly carelessness of this sort should be prevented in the future. At first glance such negligence seems as inexcusable as that of Pearl Harbor. It is difficult, however, to convince many citizens not conversant with naval matters that it was not a case of sabotage.

In either event, a rigid probe into the cause is imperative. This is indeed a serious loss for the navy and the country to suffer at this time, as the navy loses a valuable transport and the people will have to pay for the loss.

Strange Obstnacy About Farm Prices

THE OBSTINACY of senators in seeking to remove barriers against rising farm product prices passeth the understanding. Accusing Secretary of Agriculture Wickard of trying to depress the prices of major crops, the Senate Agriculture committee has voted unanimously to forbid government sales of cotton, wheat, corn and other commodities below parity prices. It approved a bill by Senators Bankhead, Gillette, Thomas and Russell to prevent both Wickard and Leon Henderson, price administrator, from "dumping government stocks on the market in order to beat down prices," as the sponsors put it.

The new Price Control law prohibited any ceilings on these farm products until they reached 110 percent above parity but the farm-minded senators complained because Wickard and Henderson, much to the gratification of all concerned about farm price inflation dangers, recently announced that they intended to use government stocks of these commodities to keep prices below such levels.

"This is not a slap at Secretary Wickard," Gillette said. "It just tells Mr. Wickard that he can't do what he said he planned to do."

Backers of the proposal said they expected congressional approval, but conceded privately that President Roosevelt might veto it inasmuch as he vetoed a measure last year that sought to forbid the government from selling its cotton and wheat for the duration of the war. That is what he should do this time.

If Congress removes curbs against rising farm prices, wage prices will follow upward and thus the deadly spiral of inflation will be allowed to swirl.

As the announcement by Wickard and Henderson received general commendation of the country, one may well wonder whether the senators have given the serious thought they should give to the possible effect such stubbornness here demonstrated may have upon popular faith in representative government.

A Cheering Thought About This War

THERE ARE TIMES when citizens become discouraged over the war news. Memories of the elders and readings of the youngsters bring to mind the long and brilliant record of smashing victories American arms and naval might have been wont to achieve; and they cannot understand why we cannot have them now as if at the press of a button.

But it must be remembered that war conditions today are vastly different from those of former years. A chief factor has been the enormous development of warplanes and the destructiveness of their bombings, which have increased and spread a vastly more destructive warfare from the particular battlefields of old to every field, civilian and industrial, which must be protected.

Here is the cheerful thought, however, for the impatient. They must remain calm with the assurance that while the nation has suffered setbacks at the outset of this global war and that while comparatively slow progress has been made in it thus far, we are fortunate in having had everything given us with which to win.

We have superior and abundant resources of all kinds, unequalled mass production facilities, amazing scientific advantages, an energetic strong manhood—in fact everything that will be needed.

More than this, we know that we have the right on our side, and that gives us the indomitable will to win.

So, let us have faith and not become discouraged by temporary lack of spectacular military or naval successes. These will come in time because our might and our right will bring them.

More Possibilities In the Upper OCD

IT APPEARS that we have not fully explored the possibilities of multitudinous activities in the upper reaches of the civilian defense organization.

One H. O. Stevens, of New York, points to one of an untouched myriad of these possibilities in a letter to the New York Herald Tribune.

Expressing gratitude that the war is not going to be lost for lack of rhythms and folk dancing, Stevens points out the vital importance of cutting paper dolls, which he thinks would be much more useful for folks huddled in an air raid shelter than folk dancing. He knows of a young woman who cuts the cutest paper dolls you ever saw, who would be quite willing to become chief of the paper doll department of the OCD at $4,800 a year.

The idea would appeal particularly to little boys and girls of the paper doll cutting age, if not to elders. But the latter must have some consideration, in the need they may have, for example, of being instructed in how to teach the technique of paper doll cutting. Another consideration here not to be overlooked is the uplift given to pedagogical ideals and inspirations in the kindergarten stage.

Don't Play God

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've learned something. . . . I may not be able to stick it out and may fall down on what I know, but I've learned something and I can put what I've learned in three words:

"DON'T PLAY GOD!"
If you do, you'll be sorry. If you do, you may spoil other people's lives. You'll not get away with it. You'll be hated for it. And you'll end by hating others and being sorry for yourself.

Lots of people try to play God and make miserable failures. They're asked for help, for advice. They give out of their store of money or experience. And in return they feel a warm glow of well-being. They have helped another human being and the reward is happiness. . . . But they don't stop there. If they did, all would be well and would end well.

No, they take charge of the other fellow's life. They begin to act as though they were perfect. They know everything. They can't go wrong. They become dictators and tyrants and try to decide everything in those other people's lives. . . . they pick out ties. . . . they choose dinners. . . . they select the right school and the right friends and the right profession for the poor little person they are "helping."

And then what happens? Well, either the other fellow weakens and becomes a limp slave and then they lose patience with him, faith in him, and grow weary of him—or he gets tired of the way they are playing God with him and rebels and "disappoints them terribly."

I've seen it happen, and once when I was a know-it-all senior in college I tried playing God with a freshman and it took a World War to get him out of my clutches. Once a fine elderly woman tried to play God to me—and now she doesn't like me any more. I was a great disappointment to her.

Playing at being God doesn't work for human beings—in either direction. If you let someone else play God to you, you'll weaken and go to pieces. If you try to play God, you'll lay up unhappiness and perhaps tragedy for yourself.

Human beings do need help, men and women need to help each other, but they must not try to play God in other people's lives. The part is too big and those who try it are sure to flop.

Especially parents—of whom I am one.

Production Rate Most Gratifying, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—I have just been talking to a man who has seen the most recent figures on war production.

He is a man who knows exactly what such figures mean.

The trouble with the average lay-reporter writing on production reports is that he doesn't. His news is like a report that 10,000 head of stock have been sent to market—figures mean.

But my friend is as near expert on war production as any one we have. He had no more intention of making these confidential figures public than I have, but the important point in mentioning them is that for the first time since we began to produce at all, this hitherto pessimistic critic finds himself surprised with optimism.

Astonishing Progress Made

The progress is really astonishing. It is not only the figures themselves, but the fact that, applying the rate of improvement they show, to the actual rate of production, some of the most optimistic guesses—even of the president himself—which a few weeks ago seemed unbelievable—now appear attainable.

This does not mean that the record is uniformly satisfactory. There are still unmet needs among some of the most sorely needed items. But they stand out like sore thumbs where attention can be concentrated on them and in the typical American system of bringing all the elements of a mass-produced article to the assembly line in an even rate of flow, we have a right to expect increased speed where it is most necessary.

The most encouraging aspects of this picture are not the number of lethal weapons actually being turned out weekly—heart-warming as that is. It is, first, that the rate of flow is uniform and uniformly increasing. It is, second, and more important, that the great batteries of massive machines are there in place, operating at their steady, condensed, co-ordinated, rate of speed and with ample room in most cases, for a very large expansion of both number and speed—which means that we could be more generous still in estimating the future.

Really a Miracle

It is not an exaggeration to call it a modern industrial miracle. No such record in retooling, much less in converting plants to the production of a completely new article, exists in ours or any other industrial history.

To my mind, having had several years of experience in industrial management, the most remarkable thing has been the training of raw man-power material to do these jobs as mechanics. It has been a new and specialized system invented for this work alone and accomplished with a remarkable degree of intelligence and success.

I still happen to have some small part in the supervision of a small textile shop which, up to six months ago, had never manufactured a machined metal product and had no machine tools, although it had on its staff a genius in design of metal-working machinery. Today that plant is turning out a respectable poundage of finely machined metal, sub-assemblies using many of its old textile workers who have been retrained.

Industry Deserves Credit

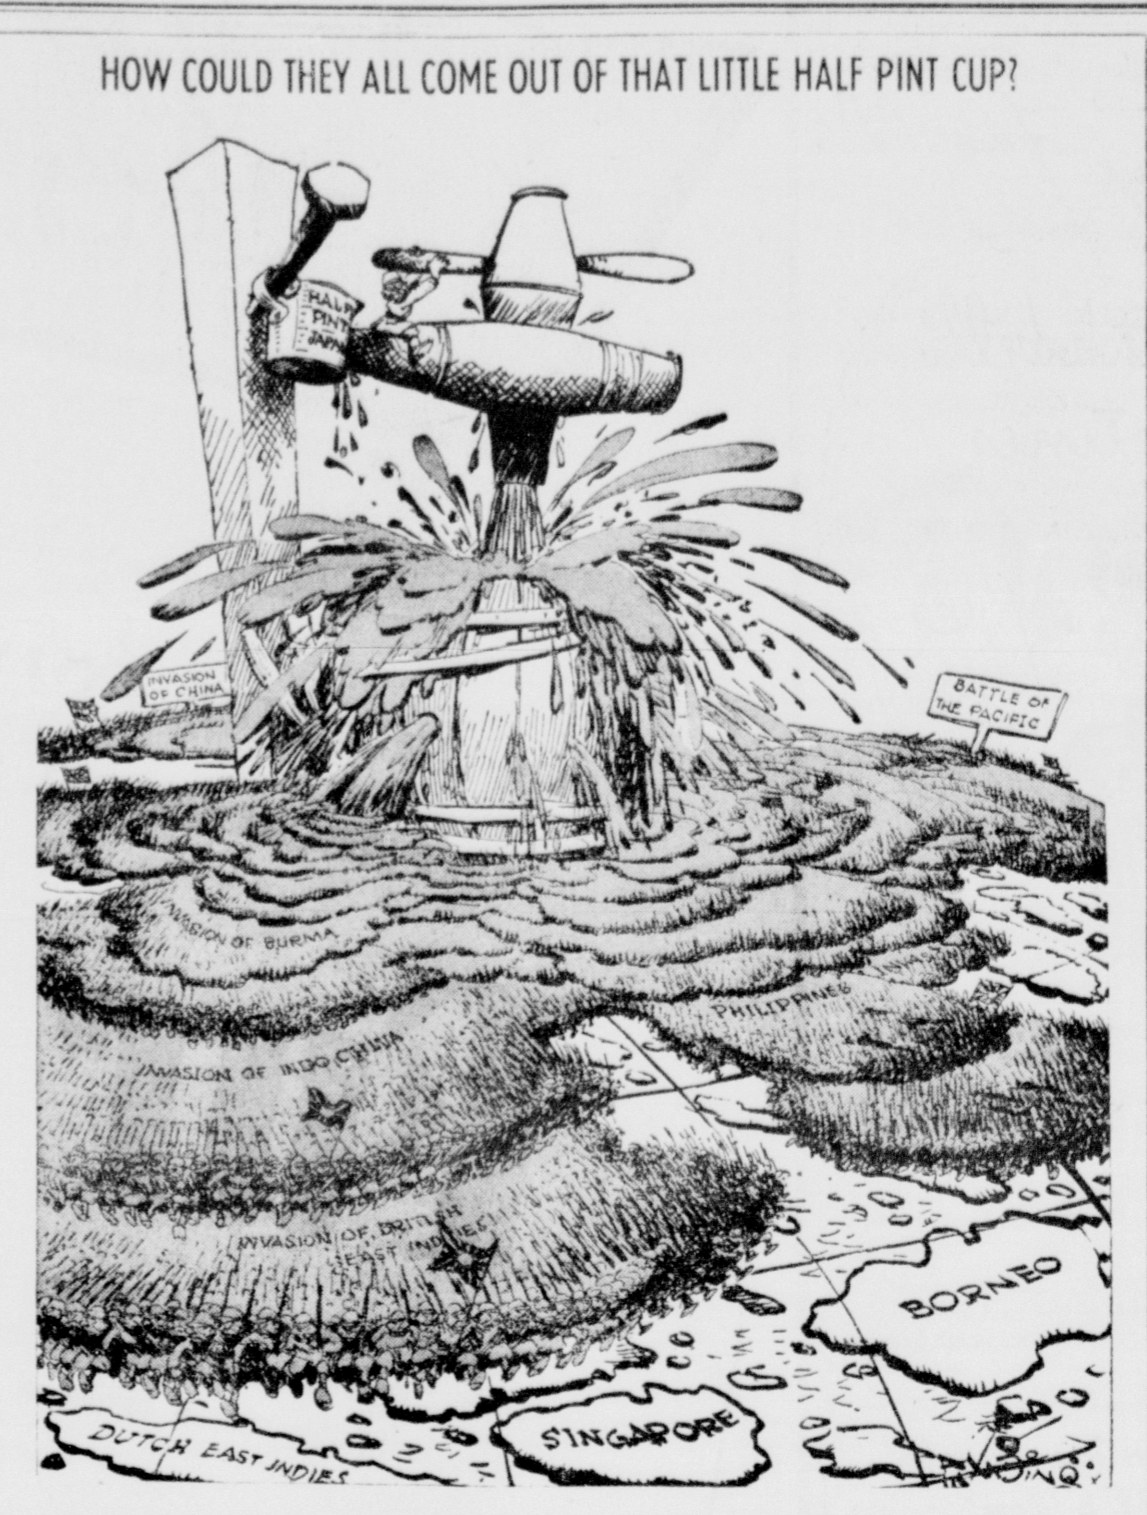

A curious question of credit will arise here. The new flood of war

Wage or Farm Demands, if Successful, Will Bring Inflation, Sullivan Declares

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Price Control law was enacted the opening week of February. The price administrator, Mr. Leon Henderson was appointed, and confirmed by the Senate on Monday of this week, February 9. The mechanism is all set for keeping prices down and avoiding ultimate inflation.

Yet at the same moment there are under way two actions which, if successful, would make the Price Control law ineffective, render Mr. Henderson helpless.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Woodland owners who plan to use wood for fuel next winter should cut their supply now, is the advice of C. F. Winslow, extension forester for the University of Maryland. It will make the wood more efficient, he says.

Training courses to equip Maryland girls and women for work on farms to relieve the agricultural labor shortage resulting from the war are being offered by the University of Maryland, it is announced by Dr. T. B. Symons, dean and director of the extension service. Women volunteers, to be known as the Women's Land Army, are being recruited through the American Volunteer Service, of Washington, under the direction of Mrs. R. Ernest Dupuy, of Washington.

A promising recruit in the Food-for-Freedom Campaign this year is the new, high-yielding, disease-resistant Cumberland red clover, introduced last year by cooperative work of several state agricultural experiment stations, crop improvement associations, and the United States Department of Agriculture. In the southern half of the red clover belt, it produces more hay, and more nitrogen is left in the soil for food and feed crops that follow. Increasing nitrogen in the soil by use of efficient legumes is more important this year because of a possible fertilizer shortage.

Because of increased costs and scarcity, Maryland farmers should make every effort to prolong the life of harness and leather goods on the farm by repairing and frequent oiling, says Ray W. Carpenter, specialist in agricultural engineering for the extension service. He says that farm harness should be inspected, repaired, and oiled at least once a year, and if used continuously, twice a year. If leather shows cracks on the grain side when bent sharply, it is a sign that it is deteriorating and needs oil to prevent additional damage.

The Nazis Hand Us Something

From the Johnston, Pa., Tribune

Many and varied have been the problems generated by the second world-wide clash of nations. Probably none is more tricky than securing the products of skilled European craftsmen whose output has been cut off by U-boats. Swiss lens makers, for instance, are the best in the world and this country, to meet the demand for optical glass needed in periscopes, binoculars, range-finders and other precision instruments, must greatly expand its own Lilliputian production of such necessities.

For this supply, Uncle Sam forunately has one ace in the hole. After the Nazi tyranny swept Europe, many thousands of skilled workmen escaped to the protection of the United States. They are acting as instructors, passing on the lore of their ancient skills to youthful enthusiasts anxious to maintain the traditions of the workmanship.

Extreme Changes Coming Soon as Tires Wear Out

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—There is nothing phony about the rubber shortage (except the black dealing in second hand tires). Frankly we have about 600,000 tons of rubber available. Used normally it would last a year. Counting tire stocks it might last two years. But the army and navy alone would use it in that time. A plane cannot get off the ground without a rubber tire.

By the first of the year we will be producing at the rate of 150,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year. In six months more we will be getting 300,000 to 400,000 tons a year. Thus our crisis is likely to last until mid-1943. (Commerce Secretary Jones has put out conflicting figures, but the above represent a more accurate consensus.)

Within sixty days, therefore, you are likely to see extreme changes in the most vital element of civilian life. It is possible long distance buses may be stopped eventually and delivery trucks withdrawn, to haul defense workers to and from work. No civilian will be immune from the early effects. In this phase, first and foremost, is war likely to impose itself upon the average man. Here the first belt-tightening will be required.

Hitler's Situation Desperate

Hitler's situation on rubber must be desperate. It has been learned here he recently took risks out of all proportions to get a meager 150,000 tons of crude rubber. Without some crude, his synthetic material wears rapidly. He has not received a single ounce of rubber since the war began, except such as he was able to seize in conquered countries, and he found not even second hand tires in Russia.

Incidentally also, do not expect too much from Brazil. That nation's leaders want to develop some plantations and may get some money to try it, but accepted estimates suggest no imposing amount could be furnished. Greater store is placed in the domestic tree planting now being authorized by Congress for the Agriculture department. Some think we will be producing more than we need from this source after 1945.

No Military OCD

Certain cities have been seeking quietly to get out of their own civilian defense mess by employing retired army officers—former corps area commanders—with a sense of military organization and discipline.

They have seen political hangers-on and third assistant street lighters appointed to positions where experienced leadership is required. This seems to be a local counterpart of the choice of friends of Washington officials to the national headquarters.

But to all such suggestions, the War department has shaken its head negatively. No reason has been offered, but it is a fairly well recognized fact that the White House killed the House effort to transfer all OCD to the army. No doubt the boss at the top also cleared the War department to steer clear of even direct involvement.

There is an ancient liberal principle that the military should be divorced from the civilian to keep the army out of politics, and thus to avoid the danger of revolutions which have corrupted some democracies.

So it appears to have been definitely determined that OCD must muddle along politically and socially rather than with military precision.

Landis Gets Busy

One of the original New Deal brain trusters, James Landis, has taken hold of OCD with a stronger hand than Mayor La Guardia exhibited. La Guardia delegated much authority. Landis is exercising it personally to such an extent that congressmen are hearing inner screams.

Yet the government departments are only getting around to employee defense.

Steaming congressional criticism (dramatized in the employment of the movie actor and dancer) is no doubt warming OCD to more strenuous action. Cities may soon resume blackout tests and hold them once a week, although much depends on siren equipment.

Confessed Negligence

Main point of the disaster to the Normandie was lost in most accounts. It was to be our best troop transport. The authorities have successfully proved there was no sabotage, but in doing so they confessed negligence comparable to that of Pearl Harbor.

Morning Motto

A husbandman who had a quarrelsome family, after having tried in vain to reconcile them by words, thought he might more readily prevail by an example. So he called his sons and bade them lay a bundle of sticks before him. Then having tied them up into a fagot, he told the lads, one after another, to take it up and break it. They all tried, but tried in vain. Then, unttying the fagot, he gave them the sticks to break one by one. This they did with the greatest ease. Then said the father: "Thus, my sons, as long as you remain united, you are a match for all your enemies; but if you differ and separate, and you are undone."—AESOP.

Training Child To Help at Home Vital in Warfare

Youngsters Often Don't Have Chance to Share in Duties

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

In the average American home the child over five or six has been robbed of the opportunity to learn to share in the duties of that home. Led astray by the destructive doctrine, so widely preached for years, that a child should do only what he feels like doing, parents have generally brought up their children to be waited on and be dependent.

Most parents make themselves their children's slaves. Suppose a boy or girl of the sixth or eleventh grade were to come home from school and say to mother, "I'll do the marketing, get the dinner and take care of the dishes; go sit down and rest or read or listen to the radio." Unless that mother had a good heart she might die from the shock! Yet we shouldn't condemn the child. He does only what he has been used to doing.

Why shouldn't youngsters, boys and girls, in any home without domestic help, be trained so they will make such an offer often and go through with it? A few high school students have such heavy school assignments that they feel they must spend most of their time at home on these studies. While this practice should be modified—and is often caused by excessive emphasis at home on high grades—the student who drives himself consistently to take responsibility. There are only a few like him, however.

Most loiter on the street, go out evenings for god times, or loaf in other ways, rarely sharing in the home responsibilities.

Destroys Character
This character-destroying practice was bad enough during peace time. But it is culpable during war! If we are to win and if we are to have young men and women properly educated to carry on and build up our democracy after the war, the home will have to train the child to bear responsibility.

Parents with children from 6 to 18 may well realize that their children have not been given the kind of home education they deserve nor the kind their nation demands of them. It will not be easy to make amends. If, for instance, these parents were to announce suddenly that from now on the children shall do so and so, the results rarely will be good. Many children who never learned to share in home responsibilities would not want to cooperate or obey. Habits can't be established in a moment by a mere command.

Cultivate Responsibility
But with most children, home responsibility will come only after wise planning and continual guidance by the parents. Many a parent whose child has been hitherto assigned a number of jobs, none of which he has been doing willingly, might do well to reduce the number of required jobs by half or more and center on the few remaining ones till the child has learned to do these few on his own responsibility. Then it might be better if the child also were allowed to do some things about the home he would like to do.

Let the mother of a mere tot begin right now to make him self-reliant and train him gradually to do regular jobs about the home, doing nothing for him which he can do himself, and training him to do some things he would rather not do, just because he is a member of the family.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. When I am at the telephone my twenty-months-old child will pull on the wires and try to pull the receiver down on him. I find it hard work to have even a short conversation on the telephone.

A. Get him a toy telephone which he can use while you talk on the real one. If that fails, center your efforts on training this tot in the meaning of "No" in other situations, so you can say this word with effect when next you telephone. Telephone an imaginary person, when you can easily punish the youngster immediately for each such offense.

JITTERY HEADACHE

Milton Kaye will be at the piano as soloist for Alfred Wallenstein's sinfonietta on MBS at 8.

The Rudy Vallee-John Barrymore show, NBC at 10, will come from the naval reserve aviation base at Long Beach, Calif.

Immortal Words of 1863 again Mark Ideals, Goal of United States at War

"Peace Eternal in a Nation United" is the hope set forth by the Eternal Peace Light monument, above, on the Gettysburg battlefield, where President Abraham Lincoln, inset, made his famous address

By MARI YANOFSKY
Central Press Correspondent

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 11.—This year, Abraham Lincoln's birthday is more than just a "legal holiday."

To America it is a rededication of all the principles for which the man stood.

To the rest of the world it is a reassurance of the vital importance of liberty and unity in American hearts and a solemn promise that those requisites of a free people shall continue on American soil.

Lincoln and Gettysburg—one cannot separate those two words.

If there is any American name of a place that connotes both liberty and unity it is Gettysburg, Gettysburg—where freedom's ties were sorely tried, yet strengthened anew by the valor of the men from the South and the North. Here a weary, but inspired President Lincoln uttered those never-to-be-forgotten words, "All men are created equal." Here the ideal that equality must mean freedom from any kind of bondage met and passed its crisis, and with that concept came a greater unity that never since has been threatened.

Unity

At Gettysburg, in simple, straightforward words, a man recognized by all nations as one of the greatest who ever lived expressed the hopes of a people who had known well the perils of a divided nation, but were now of one thought—unity.

What happened at the Battle of Gettysburg, which some historians consider the turning point of the Civil War, brought about a moral renaissance for America. There came a rebirth of American ideals and policies, a union of not only the North and the South, but of the East and West as one great nation—"indivisible with freedom and justice for all."

The Blue and the Gray, colors of the quarrelling factions, were blended together once and for all under the red, white and blue of the American flag. The American desire for peace was in the heart of every man, regardless of the location of his native state.

On Nov. 19, 1863, President Lincoln dedicated the cemetery at Gettysburg with his memorable address. A little more than three months after the noise of gun fire had ceased at Gettysburg, he said in 272 words what the whole nation was feeling, words that today retain their full meaning. Much of his speech might well have been repeated at Flander's Field, such as "we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract."

"Devotion"

"It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain . . ."

Still another part of his speech is appropriate today to the spirit to which America firmly will cling in the face of threats of foreign isms. It is those final words of Lincoln's address, " . . . and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Gettysburg, in south-central Pennsylvania, is only a few hours' drive from Philadelphia, home of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Gettysburg is the historic highlight on U. S. route 30 (Lincoln Highway) which traverses the southern area of the Keystone state. Coming from Pittsburgh on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the traveler can leave that road at Breezewood, a short distance east of Bedford, and continue on Route 30 to the national shrine.

A monument marks the spot on which President Lincoln stood when he gave his immortal speech. Other monuments represent various states, and there are numerous statues of war leaders.

Peace

Another monument, simple, but impressive, bears the words, "Peace Eternal in a Nation United." This is the Eternal Peace Light monument, which was dedicated on Independence Day, 1938, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in honor of the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. At that time 1,845 veterans from many states, both Union and Confederate, gathered in their first united meeting and maybe their last; their numbers are decreasing fast.

Some of them were spry and anxious to speak of the old days; others were quiet and reticent and more willing to let dead memories be forgotten. They were no longer the Blue and the Gray, except perhaps in uniform, but all were gray with years.

But from that meeting of a new America with the old, came a renewed declaration for a united country, fresh vows of peace to keep the American guiding light of peace forever burning and, like the one on that simple monument, a light that never shall fail.

Americans will never that light on Lincoln's birthday this year.

Confidence of Lincoln Is Needed Today, McKenzie Says

William L. McKenzie, senior vice commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night delivered an address over Radio Station WTBO on Abraham Lincoln in another of the series entitled "Speak Up for Democracy."

After giving a few personal qualifications which Lincoln possessed, McKenzie declared that if America is to remain free and strong we must follow the Great Emancipator's lead in strengthening both our own and the morale of our soldiers.

Lincoln, beset by gloomy days and pending disaster during the Civil war fought on with confidence and we today must do likewise, McKenzie warned.

Democrats Discuss Financial Problems

Forty Democratic party leaders gathered last night at the Windsor hotel to discuss with the state central committee ways and means of raising funds to wipe out the ancient debt hanging over the party and to provide a "war chest" to defray expenses of future campaigns.

Joseph H. Griffin, chairman of the state central committee, said the meeting was especially harmonious and productive, he believed, of considerable good. As a result, he said, he was hopeful that the $760 debt dating back more than ten years might be wiped out.

In addition to members of the committee, those present included all office-holders of the county and representatives of every election district. Among the speakers were Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce Jr., Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee, Edward J. Ryan and Matthew J. Mullaney.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
MOLLA almost stumbled out into the cold air. She passed several taxicabs, but she continued to walk as though in a dream, except that no dream she ever had could be so horrible.

Her mother's very life was in her hands, and yet she was helpless. How could she convince Kurt Wilhelm that she could never get hold of the formula even if she were willing?

Aside from that one mistake made by Burton Whitworth when she had made the carbon copies, she knew it was a closely guarded thing. She didn't even know where it was kept.

The office safe? A safety deposit vault in a bank? At Burton Whitworth's home? In the experimental laboratory?

Guessing would be futile, and it wasn't something she could find out by asking. That would create suspicion. But this was mad, she told herself. Even if she found a way she knew she could not go through with it. Not only because of her loyalty to herself and Burton Whitworth. It was much bigger than that now. She had committed herself to America and the American way of life, and if she did Kurt Wilhelm's bidding, she would be helping to destroy all that.

She must stall for time—put him off until some desperate idea entered her head whereby she could save her mother and prevent Kurt from getting the formula. How? How? How? The word drummed through her head until she was dizzy. Before she knew it she walked all the way home.

"Okay, let it go," Neil Landquist lay flat on his stomach and watched a soupy mass of concrete pour from the sluices and into the framework of the dam.

"That stuff can't miss," he called to three army engineers standing in the stream in rubber boots. "It'll lay there and watched until last bit had been poured. Then joined the army men."

"I hope so," one of them said. "We're as anxious about this as you are. Possibly more so, because of what it will mean to us."

"Don't you think in the long run a better gun emplacement will mean as much to me?" Neil asked quizzically, folding a stick of gum into his mouth.

The army engineer smiled. "I guess you're right. I didn't look at it that way."

Neil planted his feet wide and jammed his hands into his back pockets. "That's a mighty fine piece of work, gentlemen, even if I'm forced to say so myself. Seems almost a shame to blow it up just to experiment."

"But darned worth while if the experiment's a success," one of the engineers grunted.

"Incidentally," he added curiously, "how well is your secret being guarded? These are mighty tough days."

Neil laughed. "Too well. In fact, I don't know what the stuff is myself. They send me the mix from the laboratories and I mix it up myself."

He led them to a small shed that was heavily locked and barred. Neil took out a key and went inside. He came out with a handful of powdered concrete.

"Here it is. Can't tell any difference by looking at it, except that it's a slightly darker color."

The engineer rubbed it between their fingers. "It can be broken down in analysis, of course," one said sharply.

"A mighty tough job, I understand," Neil told them. "One of the secret ingredients in here leaves no trace."

He slapped the engineer on the back. "Nothing to worry about. Now, if you'll excuse me, gentlemen, I'll put in a call to the New York office."

Enid Blair answered the phone. "Hello," he said cheerfully. "What's cooking?"

"I'll put you through to Mr. Whitworth," she said briefly.

"Hey," Neil said. "I won't bite you."

There was a short silence, and then, hurriedly, as though she were saying something she shouldn't, Enid said, "Molla broke off her engagement with Tay."

He heard the crackling as she made the connection with Burton Whitworth's office. Whitworth said hello three times before Neil snapped out of it.

"They're going to blast in three days," Neil said mechanically. His thoughts were far from the subject.

"Good," he heard Whitworth say. "I'll be down to see how it goes." Neil hung up. So Molla had broken her engagement. He wondered what had happened; if something had come up suddenly to make her do that. He wished suddenly that he were in New York then.

Three days later the army engineers took over. Burton Whitworth and Dr. Jordan sat down on the bank alongside Neil and watched every proceeding with eager eyes.

Dr. Jordan puffed calmly on his pipe, but Whitworth was a bundle of nerves.

"Why must they take so much time?" he muttered. "What are they discussing down there. What do they think they're blowing up—Boulder Dam? That thing isn't more than 25 feet long if it's an inch."

"Twenty-two," Neil said, by way of correction. "Give 'em time, boss. We build 'em, they smash 'em."

The engineers finally got their first charge set. "Here it comes," Neil said tensely. An engineer gave the all-clear sign and signaled to the detonator. There was a muffled rumble, followed by a terrific roar. The great mass of concrete shook in a cloud of dust.

They all ran down when the dust settled. The engineers swarmed all over the structure.

"Pretty well cracked, but still plenty solid," one said. "It would still hold a load of water behind it if it had to."

"Get that second charge ready," the chief engineer shouted.

Neil's eyes were shining. "That first charge would have wrecked the thing normally."

Fifteen minutes later the second charge was ready. The signal was given and again there was the terrific roar.

The cracks gave way to crumbling segments this time and small pieces were torn out at various intervals.

The engineers were sweating. "You've got something here, fella," the chief called to Neil. "It's taking everything we're giving it."

They tried a third blast. This time great chunks came out of the base and slowly, somewhat majestically, the dam crumbled as though fighting to the very last.

Burton Whitworth mopped his brow. "Lord, what punishment that thing took!" He turned to Dr. Jordan, his hand extended.

"Waiter, you did it. You've got something great there, Uncle Sam will be just as proud of you as I am."

He grabbed Dr. Jordan by the arm. "Come on, let's see what the army brass hats think about it now."

Neil watched them scramble down the bank and join the excited group of army men who were examining the wreckage of the dam.

Then he turned away and trudged along the edge of the stream to his station wagon.

His work here was done. Now he had to pack and go back to New York. Right at the moment there was a more important piece of business there than that which he had just completed.

Radioactive Elements Are Helpful In Study of Human Body Chemistry

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A decade or more ago Dr. Graham Lusk announced that he would not try to prepare another edition of his textbooks on nutrition and dietetics, because he believed that investigation of the subject had gone about as far as it could along the lines of chemistry and that it awaited the development of something brilliant in the field of physical chemistry. His prediction is coming near to fulfillment in the use of radioactive elements to study living processes.

"Probably the most useful tool for research since the discovery of the microscope" is the way this new method is described by Dr. Joseph G. Hamilton, of the University of California. If so it is epoch-making indeed, because the introduction of the microscope gave us the sciences of pathology—the science of disease-of bacteriology, the cause of infectious diseases, the fertilization of the cell, of embryology, the development of living creatures from the time of fertilization, of heredity, of minute anatomy, a third of the science of diagnosis, and through the study of unicellular forms of life clinched the evidence for evolution.

Identifies Chemical Elements

The idea of the new tool is not easy to explain in a popular way. In fact, I am not sure I understand it myself from just reading about it, but I am going to have a look at some of its operations next month.

It is a sort of tracer which identifies chemical elements with far more sensitivity than ordinary chemical analysis. A chemical in the body which is not ordinarily radioactive is made radioactive. In this process it does not cease to act just as it ordinarily does. Iron, for instance, enters into blood cells, attracts oxygen, etc. The radioactivation does no harm to the body tissues but makes them luminous, or at least luminous in a radioactive way so that their functions can be watched.

For instance, the element phosphorus which is present in all cells of the body has been so studied. The cells can be seen giving off and taking up the radioactive phosphorus. The old saying that fish is a brain food is based on the fact that both the brain and fish contain a somewhat large amount of phosphorus.

Refutes Idea

The new tool again refutes the idea about the brain food value of trout. I understand that on a questionnaire several school teachers thought that was true by questioning that the exchange of phosphorus in the brain is far less than in the muscles and away far less than in the bones, which use seventy-five per cent of the body's phosphorus in the form of calcium phosphorus. Some trials have been made in the use of radio-phosphorus in leukemia, a form of blood disease. Fascinating is the thought that insect metabolism can be studied this way. The beating of an insect's wings must indicate an astonishing release of energy and of how it is done we know nothing.

Questions and Answers

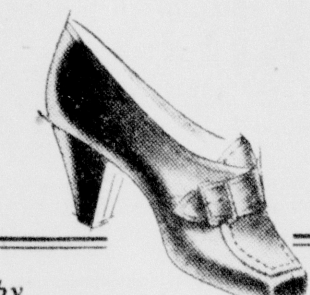

L. K.: Are hot Epsom salt baths harmless for reducing weight?
Answer: Hot Epsom salt baths often cause a very severe state of mild shock and low blood pressure in some people. If you are not subject to this kind of result, they will do you no harm, but they do not reduce weight. All you lose is the water and salt in the perspiration.

Among the Ruins of a Bomb Shattered Town a Famous Horseman Rides To Keep a Promise

(Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.)

BY CALVIN LINDSEY
Odd, was the word that flashed through his feverish mind as he stumbled down the debris strewn aisle of the bomb shattered church. Odd, that he should be doing the very something he had vowed never to do again. Yes, he had promised himself never to as much as mount the steps of a house of worship let alone enter one.

He had almost broken his vow that Sunday in Paris. He had stood outside the great Cathedral while the high officials had heard Mass and had prayed for a miracle—the success of their armed forces against a ruthless, powerful invader.

When the organ swelled to the pulsating strains of the Marseillaise and the multitude screamed to the national anthem it was hard to restrain himself.

His weary legs buckled beneath him. He grabbed a piece of splintered timber with his left hand and painfully and slowly dragged himself up right again. The right hand was numb, a slug fired by a sub-machine gun had shattered his shoulder and now his entire body was wracked with excruciating pain that seared his very vitals.

"En avant marche!" He yelled above the battle din and he led them galloping like a hurricane into the enemy ranks. He struck overhand blows. He felled men with sidearm strikes like a tennis player. He smashed in faces—when he struck a man—that man went down. But gloom was closing in . . . He rallied all his remaining strength and with a scream like a warrior gone berserk, "En avant marche!"

"For you Pierre," he gasped. "For you Jean," as he hit a face. "For you . . ." He was now sucking in his breath. Sucking in air through his mouth in great sobbing gulps. It was so dark now he couldn't see . . . he was groping in thick, inky blackness.

His dim eyes looked up at the moon splashed statue.

"Thank you," he murmured. I broke the first promise I made to you . . . but, I'll . . . not . . .

break the last . . . one." And even this light was becoming dim and far distant

He was trembling with eagerness.

Now he was edging closer to that beam of light—it felt like a spotlight upon a statue. He stepped into the circle of light before the statue. In the cold, pale, impersonal moonlight could be seen the dark splotch at the right shoulder, just where the sleeve was joined to the shoulder and the dangling, limp arm.

Again he was forming awkward letters with small bright colored pegs. Again he was repeating the nuptial vows. And now again he was kneeling between two newly made graves—one was a very tiny grave. And again he was weeping slow, fierce, burning tears . . . that was the moment in the dim hazy past when he had made the vow never to pray again.

He was trembling with eagerness, trying to remember those simple prayers he had memorized so long ago. Those hell divers that made those hell divers that made those prayers dodge around in his head. "Mother of God," he prayed, "I have nothing to offer you in return for the favor I am about to ask except my life, and—there isn't much of that left now. I beg of you to give to my country the miracle our gallant leaders prayed for—the miracle she needs to save her from a ruthless invader . . . to save her from defeat. Yes, Mother of God, a cruel beast is the enemy. He strafes with machine-gun bullets roads crowded with aged feeble old men, women and children.

"I, who have renounced God and You, I am asking nothing for myself. I know I am not worthy of Your consideration. Take what is left of my worthless life and give to my country the miracle needed to save her."

Now he was in a clearing amid a great forest. Day was dawning and in the shadow he could make out a large body of horsemen. He had never seen a body of cavalry armed like this band. The horses wore steel breast plates and head covers. And mounted on these coal-black chargers were huge men, clad from head to foot in sable armor, each held at rest in his stirrup a great lance— heavy maces that looked like sledgehammers hung from the saddle bows. Not a word was spoken by these strange horsemen; he could see their faces; the visors on the black helmets were closed. He was now mounted on a huge ebony war horse—he couldn't remember how he got there—but he was mounted. He gripped the handle of a heavy mace in a vice-like grip with his left hand. Odd, that he was now able to grasp the reins in his helpless right hand. The pain in his arms and shoulder was gone. The horsemen started to move out of the forest, they rode at a fast pace, but it was easy to ride this huge mount, the horse seemed a part of his very self—like his legs—he retained his seat in the saddle without thought or effort.

They were now in sight of the enemy. The monster tanks spread out in fanlike formation. There were the daredevil motorcyclists tearing across the open countryside like mechanized demons spraying the horsemen with machine-gun fire. But the bullets seemed to miss their objectives—he could see no casualties among either the men or horses.

The sable cavalry pushed forward at a fast even pace, but they put on a spurt of speed as they neared the tanks.

The tanks opened fire. The flame throwers went into action but, bullets, shells, flame and smoke didn't seem to annoy these sable horsemen any more than would a cloud of feathers. They held their lances at rest and charged those huge steel fire belching monsters, and, when contact was made with the point of the great lance, the tank exploded and lay a crumpled heap of smoking blazing debris.

The stukas were wrecked, the huge tanks were smoldering piles of scrap iron and now the horsemen were charging the armored cars.

He was using his mace now, he made every stroke count for a man. How strong he was . . . the pain was all gone now . . . the miracle he had prayed for was all gone now . . . the miracle he had prayed for was actually happening before his very eyes. Yes, these immortal horsemen had routed the enemy and had saved his glorious country. But darkness seemed to be setting in . . . They must hurry and follow up their gains and completely rout the enemy.

He raised himself in the stirrups and beckoned to a group of black horsemen. They rode into formation behind him.

420 Persons Can Be Given Shelter In Post Office

Complete Setup in Case of Air Raid Is Devised by James C. Shriver

The first complete setup for an air raid shelter in Cumberland has been devised by James C. Shriver, postmaster. The shelter will be the post office building on Pershing street.

Plans include a police and fire force, Red Cross workers, a canteen, first aid station and maintenance of the building. Shelter is available for 420 persons in the main lobby and basement rooms of the huge structure, Shriver said.

One Entrance Will Be Closed
In the event of an air raid the main entrance next to the Strand theater will be closed and made secure against bomb splinters. Alfred L. Sidaway will be stationed on the outside of the entrance to direct persons seeking shelter to the west entrance near South Mechanic street. He will later be on duty as a fireman inside the building.

At the west door two men will be stationed, James W. Webster, who will admit persons, and Joseph A. Grabenstein, who will count them as they enter. William R. Thayer will direct persons to a safe position in the lobby on the first floor. Ninety persons can be accommodated there.

After the main lobby is filled Thayer will direct persons to the basement where William W. Nae will direct them to the central part of the basement which can hold fifty persons. Eighty persons can also be accommodated in the storage room in the basement. An additional fifty persons can be sent to the room directly under the mail loading platform at the rear of the post office. Twenty-five persons will be sent to another room nearby and a final ninety persons will be ushered into the space used as the post office storage.

The men mentioned then will return to the upper floors to act as firemen. Charles B. Leonard, fire chief, directly responsible for protection of the roof of the building, will be assisted by Robert B. Sturtz, Charles F. Strong and Corp. Jack L. Miller will protect the third floor against fire. Glisson T. Porter and Karl L. Michel, U.S.N., will protect the second floor.

Lieut. William H. Geppert, U.S.N., will be chief of the police force with headquarters in the lobby. Chief Petty Officer George J. Carroll, U.S.N., will be assistant chief with headquarters on the third floor. Henry M. Millhouse, manager of the Social Security office, will protect the second floor while Yeoman Edward B. Shuck will be stationed in the basement.

George E. Hess and Miss Bessie Baird will guard the vaults in the finance department. These persons will be responsible for good order during a blackout or an attack.

Richard J. Stakem, deputy collector of internal revenue, and Staff Sgt. Clarence Blehn will handle the canteen on the main floor and also act as policemen. John R. Uhl and Yeoman John J. McLean, U.S.N., will look after fire-fighting equipment. Victor E. Shaffer will also be on general duty as a fireman.

First Aid Station Planned
A complete and experienced personnel has been appointed for first aid duty under the direction of Delmar P. Thompson, who is now teaching many such classes, and Frank L. Storm will be his assistant. Mrs. W. Lee Wierup will have charge of nurses at the first aid station in Room 120, first floor, assisted by Mrs. Somerville Nicholson and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum. Mrs. Louise P. Coulehan and Mrs. Richard Lowndes will have charge of the Red Cross office on the third floor.

Help Man Ramparts Of Mercy, McAlpine Asks in Radio Plea

"Give what you can to help man the ramparts of mercy," John M. McAlpine, president of the junior association of commerce, urged last night in a radio appeal on behalf of the $35,000 war relief campaign of the Allegheny county Red Cross chapter.

The $50,000,000 war chest the Red Cross is seeking to raise throughout the nation was described by McAlpine as "a form of insurance against the day when it will be needed."

Expressing the hope that the civilian population will be spared enemy attack, the speaker pointed out, however, that "hope is not enough." "We must be prepared," he said, "to cope with the disaster that will follow if enemy planes darken our skies."

In addition to providing aid and comfort for the men in the nation's armed forces, the Red Cross will use these funds to prepare for such eventualities, the junior association president declared, stressing the need for training of civilian volunteers in a host of activities.

Another in the series of Red Cross talks will be heard over Station WTBO at 5:50 o'clock this evening, when Clyde D. Lucas, secretary-treasurer of the Chesapeake Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, will be the speaker.

Annual Lincoln Day Dinner Has War-time Angle

Judge Sloan Expects To Devote Part of Address to Civil War

The annual Lincoln day dinner which is to be given tonight in Frostburg at the Gunter hotel under the auspices of the Allegheny County Republican State Central Committee takes on added significance in view of the fact this country is now at war.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan of circuit court will be the speaker. He will use the life of Abraham Lincoln as his topic and it will contain nothing political, he said last night. Judge Sloan will presumably devote part of his address on Lincoln's trying times during the Civil War, observers said.

The dinner, which gets under way at 6:30 p. m., begins with the invocation by the Rev. Walter D. Reese, pastor of the Welsh Baptist Memorial church, Frostburg, salute to the flag and singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Patriotic Songs to Feature
Group singing of patriotic songs led by Clement Lucas and accompanied on the Solovox piano by Joseph Williams will also be on the program. Lucas will also sing several selections.

Lewis M. Wilson, Cumberland attorney, will be toastmaster for the dinner. Mrs. Morgan C. Harris, this city, is chairman of the entertainment committee. Herbert Griffith and Thomas Elias, both of Frostburg, are in charge of general arrangements.

Reservations, some of which are still available, are in charge of Edgar M. Lewis, chief clerk of trial magistrates' court, this city. Turkey will be the piece de resistance at the dinner. Over 200 persons are expected to attend the event.

First Time in Frostburg
It was decided to hold the dinner in Frostburg because the event has never been held in the Mountain City and the committee wished to give the honor to that Republican stronghold of Allegheny county.

In common with members of other local churches, parishioners of St. Patrick's Catholic church observe special services for members of their families in the army, navy, marines and nursing corps. A silver bowl stands next to the high altar and a card is placed therein by church members stating their intention of attending Mass during the week for a son or daughter or a relative in military service.

Printed on the back of the weekly church notice last week was a list of those for whom services were being dedicated. One name caught your eye at once. As far as could be learned he has no relatives in Cumberland and is himself not a member of the parish. But his name—Gen. Douglas MacArthur—leader of the heroic defenders of the Philippines, was inscribed along with several score other local persons.

History repeats itself! The Boy Scouts of America is living again the stirring days of 1917 and 1918. The present conflict recalls the service rendered the nation when Scouting was only seven years old.

Now, on its thirty-second anniversary, the Boy Scouts of America again serves America at war. These services range from poster distribution to blackout first aid.

Early in 1941, before the United States became involved in actual war the Boy Scouts of America was asked to take the responsibility for the distribution of posters advertising the sale of United States Defense Bonds and Stamps. Boy Scouts put up 1,700,000.

Almost immediately the Office of Civilian Defense requested the aid of the Boy Scouts of America in helping to collect scrap aluminum for airplane construction. Boy Scouts all over the United States collected ten million pounds of aluminum—eighty per cent of all collected.

Then came the appeal to collect waste paper. Thousands of tons of waste paper have been gathered already by them and their quest for it continues.

As in the last World war the Boy Scouts are doing those things of which they are capable to help the home front in its fight for the democratic way of life. Scouting prepares boys for many "good turns" and America has learned through war and peace a Boy Scout is dependable.

Capt. Millholland Reviews State Guard Companies at Armory

Capt. Randolph Millholland, of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, Fort Meade, reviewed Companies C and D of the state guard last night at the state armory.

Capt. Millholland praised the excellent drilling and fitness of the two companies. He also gave a ten-minute description of army life.

Colt Uninjured When Hit by Car, But Motorist Asks $98 Damages

An automobile reputedly came off second best in an encounter with a colt last week, and its owner came off second best in a legal encounter with the colt's owner last night.

The story, as unfolded before a six-man jury and Justice-of-the-Peace C. A. Jewell in Ridgeley last night was substantially as follows:

One day last week, C. M. Malone, of near Port Ashby, finished his farm chores, checked to see that his livestock was properly penned and knocked off about 5:30 p. m. About 9 p. m., he was told by a neighbor that his colt was out on the highway.

Malone and his two children got in the car and started out to look for the colt. They soon spotted him on the road, and Malone stopped the car preparatory to corralling it. However, he delayed getting out until a car passed.

This car, whose owner-driver, Oscar Neff, of Port Ashby, was plaintiff in last night's trial, was hitting a pretty fast clip, said Malone,

RED CROSS AIDE—Although not yet organized here, the Nurse's Aide Corps of the Red Cross is doing great work in other cities assisting professional nurses. They do the routine things which take up valuable time the regular nurses can use to advantage. Miss Catherine Nardi, Red Cross nursing consultant, was in this city recently in the interest of forming a Nurses Aide Corps here. Shown here is Jane L. Meyers, Washington, D. C., training in Children's hospital with a tiny patient.

Selective Service Headquarters Enlightens Men Who Will Register

Hundreds of Allegheny county men as well as thousands of other Marylanders will join the Selective Service lists over the coming weekend, when the 20-44 age group registers for the draft. Registration days in Maryland will be Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

It is a recognized fact that registration and subsequent classification and call to military duty will affect the future of many of these men and as a result thousands of questions regarding the Selective Service procedure have been raised. Most common of these questions have been put before officers at Maryland's Selective Service headquarters in Baltimore. Here are some of the questions and the officers' answers:

Date Dead Lines Given
Q—Who must register in this month's registration?
A—All men who have not registered heretofore, and who have not reached the age of twenty on or before December 31, 1941, and who have not reached the age of forty-five on or before February 16, 1942. This registration likewise includes any man who erroneously registered on previous registration days, and who comes under the age limits of this registration.

Q—Where must I register?
A—At the registration place or places designated by the local board within the local board area in which you live. Registration in Allegheny county will be in school houses which have already been designated.

Q—When must I register?
A—Any time between 9 a. m., and 5 p. m., on Saturday, February 14, and Sunday, February 15, or between 7 a. m., and 9 p. m., on Monday, February 16.

Q—May I register as a conscientious objector?
A—No: Full opportunity will be given to express reasons for your deferment request after you receive your questionnaire.

Q—Will I get a physical examination when I register?
A—No.

15 Minutes To Register
Q—How long will it take to register?
A—Approximately fifteen minutes, if you do not wait until rush hours.

Q—May I have someone else register for me?
A—No.

Q—If I register in Cumberland and give a residence address here, can I later get it transferred to a local board in Pittsburgh, or some other city if I should move there?
A—No: The residence address given on the second line of the registration card forever determines

the local board where your registration card shall remain. Upon request, a physical examination or classification may be accomplished through the medium of another local board. But original jurisdiction is always maintained by the board which has jurisdiction over the registration residence address.

Q—Will I get a registration certificate when I register?
A—Yes.

Must Carry Card With You
Q—Is it absolutely necessary that I always carry the card?
A—Yes, this card must be kept in your possession at all times.

Q—When will I be classified if I register on the sixteenth?
A—Your classification will be in effect when your number is reached. Each registrant will be given a serial number. These serial numbers will be placed in a national lottery, and through the sequence of drawings an order number will be assigned to each man. This order number determines the sequence in which men will be sent their questionnaires and called to duty.

Q—Will everyone who registers get a questionnaire?
A—Yes.

Q—When will I get my questionnaire?
A—That depends on your order number. Those with the lowest order numbers get their questionnaires first. You will probably not get a questionnaire for a month or two at the earliest.

Not Everyone Is Examined
Q—Will everyone get a physical examination?
A—No, only those registrants who have no valid reason for deferment, and are put in Class 1 get physical examinations.

Charter Is Presented Members Following Annual Banquet

Cumberland's oldest Boy Scout Troop held its annual Father and Son banquet last night along with the presentation of its charter and individual certificates to members of the troop. Thirty-five scouts and their fathers attended.

The troop, sponsored by the B. and O. Y. M. C. A. has registered each year for the past eighteen years according to Raymond C. Lalor, Scout executive. Lalor spoke on the duty of every Scout as an American citizen.

Following the chicken dinner, H. Vernon Adams, neighborhood Boy Scout commissioner, presented the certificate to the Scout committee of Troop No. 2 and told of several former members of the troop who have succeeded in their careers and also of two former members who are now in the armed forces of the United States. John W. Rueschlein, with the navy in the Pacific war areas and David Mease, who is a radioman on an army bomber.

Local Man Injured When Struck by Car

Hospital Attaches Say John Washington's Condition Not Serious

John Washington, 70, negro, of 441 Pine street, was admitted to Memorial hospital last evening at 9 o'clock suffering a head laceration as a result of being struck by a car at the intersection of Greene and Smallwood streets.

Hospital attaches said the aged man was brought to the hospital by Albert M. Robinette, Route 5, Bowling Green, and Officer P. O. Daum of the local police.

Cresaptown Residents Go To Court To Protest Water Service Cut-Off

Associate Judge William A. Huster signed an order in circuit court yesterday enjoining the Cumberland Suburban Water Company from refusing to supply water to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Richardson, of Cresaptown, pending a hearing by the Public Service Commission.

The injunction was issued by the jurist after the Richardsons filed an equity suit alleging that their health and safety and that of the community were endangered by the action of the water company Tuesday in cutting off their water service.

The service was apparently discontinued, the suits say, because of their failure to install a water meter. They were told September 17, 1941, that after January 1, 1942, meters would have to be installed by all customers of the water company under a ruling of the Public Service Commission, according to the petition, which points out that the plaintiffs had been users of the company's water service since 1930 and were not now and never had been in arrears on their bills.

A hearing before the Public Service Commission relative to the meter order is sought by the petitioners, pending which they must continue to be served by the water company under the court order.

William L. Wilson, Jr., is attorney for the plaintiffs.
